THE DANGER OF ALCOHOL. THE DANGER OF ALCOHOL.

tion whether it were better to be drunk or a fool sober. My text furnishes a good heading for the foolhardy practice of overdoing this most fascinating of modern enjoyments. The tendency of the average skater is to overdo the exercise, which under proper physiological restraints would bring good results to body and mind. Barker served in the same position last year.

A WHEELING man who has been doing some figuring says the nails made in Wheeling last year would reach around the garth if the kegs were laid in a row end to end.

The first fact is, that alcohol is one of the greatest dangers; it is one the enormity of which no human mind can gravp; just think it—a drink bill of $500,000,000 no no year. This statement and others of a like nature that can and shall be made, are supported by the best of evimade, are supported by the best of evi-dence—figures from scientists and Govern-ment sources. While prohibition is making rapid progress and will, it is be-

THE EVIL OF GAMING.

Gambling—what is it? A desire to live without honestly working for the necessary money; a mad fascination that, sad to relate, is on the increase; that undermines manhood, wrecks hopes, brings about ruin and degradation. All nobleness takes its flight when a man become a sampler. It is immossible to connect the

Did one ever hear of gambling leading to respectability? It is dangerous, dishonorable and diagraceful; "there is death in the pot."

All lust we were three generated and seemed and the parking of the parkin

The craze in question is too young an institution in this city, and is yet under too rigid control, to demand that I shall moralize at any very great length upon the unblushing results to which the mania has led many in other places. The physician says, "If you had called me in before the disease advanced so far I could control it and help nature back to the regular performance of her functions, but now it is too late." From the watch-tower of one who is called of God and his people to care for the body as well as the soul, I see danger, and come to-night to lift the voice

A large and very enthusiastic temperance meeting was held vesterday afternoon, at Wesley M. E. Chapel, in the Eighth ward, under the auspices of the recently organized Temperance Union. The usual Sunday afternoon meeting was also held at Parker hall, in the Flith ward, and was well attended. Mr. N. S. Tenney, of Jamestown, New York, delivered an address on "The Physical Effects of Intemperance."

This evening at the Fourth street church a grand union temperance mass meeting will be held. There will be sev-eral good speakers, the principal one be-ing Miss Jennie Smith, the famous rail-road evangelist. This meeting bids fair to be an unusually interesting one.

Theolore Rooscott in April Ceatury.

Public servants of higher grade than Aldermen sometimes give adjectives a wider meaning than would be found in the dictionary. In many parts of the United States, owing to a curious series of historical associations (which, by the way, would be interesting to trace out), anything foreign and un-English is called "Dutch," and it was in this sense that a West Virginia member of the last Congress used the term when, in speaking in favor of a tariff on works of arts, he told of the reluctance with which he saw the producuctance with which he saw the prod tions of native artists exposed to comp tion "with Dutch daubs from Italy; sentence pleasing alike from its alliteration and from its bold disregard of geographic lamp-post against which he thrust himself for striking him.

I once heard a man define drunkenness thus, "A man is not drunk till he is so fall he can't lie on the ground without holding to the grass." I fear for many who are already framing such extravagant terms, at which only they will abandon the craze in question. It is still a question whether it were better to be drunk can feel selver. A Hotel Robbery.

Between 1 and 3:30 o'clock Saturday morning the Stamm House was again operated on by some hotel thief, evidently an expert. He visited the rooms of Collector of the Port Beach and a New York traveling man named Cohen. From the former he secured about $14 and from Cohen between $25 and $30 and a watch. The thief took the clothesout of the rooms of the owners and after going through them threw them into unoccupied rooms. He left Mr. Beach's watch in his vest. The theft was not d'sovered until the gentletheft was not d scovered until the gentle-men who had been robbed awake. The police were notified but could find no clue.

Burglary Last Night. Burgiary Last Night.

Last night while Nightwatchman John Murdoch was patrolling his beat, he passed Berry's rope store, on Water street, and roticed that the door was open. Examination showed that it had been forced open. Mr. Berry was informed of the discovery, and went through the store, but could discover no less. The money drawer was untouched, and nothing else was missing. Probably a timely discovery prevented the carrying out of the thieves plans.

A Serious Charge.

Thomas Newman, of East Wheeling, was arraigned before Squire Arkle Saturday evening, and gave bail in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance this evening to answer to a charge of indecent assault preferred by Mrs. Laura Hill. The effense is alleged to have been committed several weeks ago, while Mrs. Hill's husband was imprisoned in the workhouse. She has since been visiting her parents at Sharpeburg, Pa. Newman says the charge is without foundation in fact. A Wonderful Discovery.

At an early hour Saturday, before this busy city tow the model barge Nick Crawley, on ture of the capitol. Capt, Kuglen was in command. At 10:30 o'clock the side wheel steamer Chesapeake, having on board the officers and clerks and their lamilies, together with a few outsiders, cast off her lines and rounded out into the cast off her lines and rounded out into the stream, and the last of the government was gone. A large, new National flag floated from the jackstaff of the steamer, and fitteen cents worth of toy flags decorated the top of the pilot house. A few hand-kerchiefs were waved both by those on the steamer and their friends on the levee, and that was about all the demonstration there was. Possibly a hundred people gathered on the levee to see the departure, including among them two enterprising photographers with their cameras, who took several views of the scenes presented.

A reporter strolled on board the boat about 10 o'clock for the purpose of bidding several of his friends good-bye. The first thing that struck his eye was a pile of cases of bottled beer on the lower deck. This was guarded by the two brass field-pieces brought here from Martinsburg at the time of the Hendricks celebration. They were mounted on either side of the They were mounted on either side of the staircase and gave the steamer quite a warstaircase and gave the steamer quite a war-like appedrance. A printing press, engine and some book binding machinery, the property of the State Printer, was also packed away on the lower guards. Just inside the cabin door were two round tables covered with nice soft balze, padded underneath; these attracted no little attention. Uncle Mike Reilly was tle attention. Uncle Mike Reilly was sented in the cabin ruminating doubtless over the trip of ten years ago when this government was transferred from Charleston to Wheeling, in bringing about which he was largely instrumental. Sam Harrison, of the McLure House, had a bundle of papers in his hands that might have been board bills, and was scanning the register. He didn't say, though, what or who it was that he was alter. Later on he led a chorus that sang several appropriate selections. This chorus was made up of several young gentlemen who had gathered on the leve to see the last of the gaug. The singing, which was entirely impromptu, commenced with that sparkling air, "Sailing, sailing, over the ocean blue," followed by "Farewell, farewell my own 'true love," sung very plaintively, and with much effect. Auditor Duffy made his appearance on the guards and then the Marseilles Hymn was whistled. B. H.
